They are also known as clothes airer. Clothes line can be outdoors or indoors. Generally, they are located in the backyard, balcony, or the garden. In certain places, people place their clothes line in the terrace to get maximum sunlight and breeze. Normally, they are above the ground level to ensure that the clothes dried on them don't touch down and get dirty. The clothes on the washing line are secured by clothes pins else there is a fear of the clothes flying away in a strong breeze.

Various Kinds Of Clothes Lines/ Washing Lines

There are various kinds of clothes lines such as folding or fixed rotary, retractable, wall mounted, ceiling mounted, removable clothesline, and so on. There are specific clothes lines for indoor purposes. There are washing lines that can be folded and stacked up when not in use. Some of the foldable clothes airer can also be moved around. In these clothes airer, the line is not attached to a wall but is mounted on a stand. These can be used indoors or outdoors.

Advantages Of Drying In A Clothes Lines

There are many advantages of drying your clothes in a clothes line as compared to a dryer. The sun dried clothes from a clothesline conserves huge electricity that a dryer might consume. The laundry smells lots fresher when dried on a clothesline. The fabric wear and tear is lesser when clothes are dried on a clothes line as clothes tend to shrink when dried in a dryer. You can do away with the mechanical sound from a dryer if you use a clothes line instead. Also, the initial as well as running cost of a mechanized dryer is far more than that of a cloth airer.

The foldable washing lines are less space consuming as you can fold them and stack them up when you don't need them. Some of the moveable clotheslines come handy when the climate is unpredictable. If the weather is clear you can place them outdoors and when it rains you can move them inside.

While drying clothes in a cloth airer might not be aesthetically good looking, the comparative advantages in using them are far good.
