Moving back to New York from out of town? Have you thought through where in New York is going to be the best place for your family to set down its new roots?

By moving to New York you'll have cut down on the number of hours that you spend travelling each day, but will the shorter travelling times be worth it if you can't find the sort of location that will give you the quality of life that you've been used to? Sure, you'll have more time with the family, but are you going to be looking at homes in areas of the city where you'd be happy to go out and spend some time with the family when you do get back home?

Many people are going to be under the impression that once they have made the decision to move into the city, that they're going to have to start making compromises on the location once they get there.

They'll feel that they can either get the location that they want, and have to stretch the budget to afford a new home there, or, they'll look for apartments that they can afford, and reduce their expectations about the location. While that may be the reality for many people, it's not true of all of the NYC condo for sale - you just have to know where to look.

There are a number of new Manhattan condos that not a lot of people have heard about, and yet they're still selling quickly; would you like to know why?

For a start these new Manhattan condos are light, airy, and have a wonderful view of the city. They are all of the things that you would have hoped to find in your new apartment, but were worried that you were going to have to pay too high a premium to get. Unlike a number of apartments that you may have seen in the past, they have top of the range fittings, and kitchens and bathrooms that have been designed to the highest standard.

That may already have these apartments sounding like they're way out of your reach, so what would you think if you also had the use of their fully equipped gym? What if you were able to relax after a stressful day with a spa, or a soothing massage? How much more do you think it would add to the cost of your new apartment if your apartment had sole access to a roof garden?

Have you managed to see any NYC condo for sale - in your price range - that had all of that? Did they also include a concierge service and a private cinema in an outdoor garden? This sounds like one of those places that you'd only be able to look at if you had a fortune, right?

Ah, but there must be a compromise on the location, mustn't there? Well, if having great transport links; plenty of nearby outdoor space, for the kids; more than enough shops to keep you supplied; and great entertainment spots within a short distance is a compromise, then I guess you will have to make a compromise in favor of getting the home that you know is going to be right for your family.

If this is the sort of 'compromise' that you don't mind making, and you're not overly satisfied with the housing options that you've seen so far, then you need to be one of the small band of people who are getting to hear about the Tempo 300 apartments, and are snapping them up before the word spreads to too many people.

If you want to make sure that getting to spend more time with your family doesn't mean you're going to have to move them somewhere that they aren't going to feel comfortable, then you'll need to have
