Article published on December 22nd 2011 | Business

On January 2011, the government of the United States of America passed an Act called the Zadroga Act, issuing provisions for relief to all those rescuers and victims whose life has been jeopardized during the devastating World Trade Center attack of 9/11.

Provisions under the Zadroga law included claims for health and financial care for victims who are currently suffering from disastrous and life-threatening diseases such as Upper or Lower Airway Disease, Acid Reflux Disease, chronic bronchitis, emphysema or chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, occupational asthma (WTC Cough), Sarcoidosis, Asbestosis, Mesothelioma Cancer etc.

Basically these diseases have mostly been detected amongst firefighter, police officer, emergency service worker, volunteer, construction worker, clean up worker, city employees etc. who participated in the relief and rescue operations of the 9/11 attack. Some victims also surfaced amongst the residents, employees and students present at and around the attack site, at the time of the fateful incident.

While the provisions has been made for all, but since the victims to claim the compensation are so many, but obviously the government requires each victim to make a legal case out of his demand for compensation. Here, the claimant needs to furnish adequate proof that he has been mentally and physically disturbed, inconvenienced or troubled as a result of the cruel attack and its devastating after-effects.

This is where the role of an experienced and practiced Zadroga attorney comes in. Since a common man is obviously not aware and well-versed with the laws of the state, the loop holes and complications involved, it is always advisable to hire the services of a dependable and learned Zadroga attorney to lead the way while requesting for a compensation.

So much caution is especially because a lot is at stake for a victim who applies for a claim. More often than not, such a victim is critically ill with a disease he picked up thanks to his 9/11 rescue and relief activities. Most of his savings have already been spent on his medical care as a result and he is obviously not in a state to keep up with a job that provides him with a regular and supportive income. This state thus makes the victim in dire need for the Zadroga compensation as he naturally cannot afford any slip-upâ€™s and delays in receiving the same.

Only a good Zadroga attorney can make this happen. He can not only give the victim the much required guidance, confidence, assurance and physiological support, but also the promise to charge him only if he makes his client win the case and not otherwise.

This â€˜no win-no feesâ€™ principle of a Zadroga attorney puts him not only in great esteem but also at a great risk. This is the reason why not every lawyer prefers to fight a Zadroga case. It is not only very emotionally straining, coping up with an extremely ill and traumatized client, but may not be a very viable deal for a lawyerâ€™s pocket too. Despite this, many brave and devoted Zadroga attorney, take a plunge to pay their gratitude to the brave rescuers of the 9/11 attack, by going ahead and representing their plea for compensation in the court of law.

In order to get your Zadroga claim in a systematic and hassle-free manner, it is best to engage the services of an able Zadroga attorney so as to ensure the desired results.
