Conducting a business single handed is an impossible task, especially if the business is a huge one that stretches across cities, countries or sometimes even continents. The best thing you can do is to take care of such a huge business is to outsource certain parts of the business to other companies specializing in that particular business aspect. For example there are numerous companies that take care of marketing, branding and advertising of other companies since they specialize in this particular aspect.

Similarly, order fulfilment is a business process that can be outsourced to UK fulfilment houses that can take care of this particular process then. But first let me explain what this order fulfilment process is and how outsourcing it can be helpful to your business.

Fulfilment of order is the process of receiving orders from customers and delivering it efficiently without any hitch. This process is tougher than it sounds since to take and deliver orders you need to first keep track of stocks in the warehouse and if there is no stock than order them from the manufacturing units. You also need to see to it that the products are delivered without any damage and hence the packaging should be taken care of along with the stocking part. An order fulfilment house would do all those things and sometimes they also provide the facility of warehouse to keep stocks, thus saving you the overhead of a warehouse. By hiring a good UK fulfilment house, you not only save a lot of time and stress but also huge manpower and the cost associated with it. The cost of maintaining a warehouse itself is huge, over and above that is the cost of packaging, keeping manpower to receive the orders, cost of appointing supervisors and so on.

There are numerous order fulfilment houses that can be found in any part of the world. You can contact the ones close to your factory and ask for quotations from each of them. But it is suggested that you do not choose an UK fulfilment house based on the quotation alone, make sure you do a thorough background research and also read reviews by other companies using their services before zeroing in on one. This is your customers you are talking about and taking any risk would tarnish the image of your company irrevocably. Hence choose sensibly and make an informed decision.
