

Article Side

Personal injury action: from car crash to recovery by Gordon Russo

Article published on January 11th 2012 | Business

A motor vehicle accident can change the lives of those involved in a moment of time, even those who are obeying the law and paying full attention to the operation of their motor vehicle. One second an individual is driving down a Texas roadway, and in the next they can find themselves fighting for their life, the victim of a drunk driver or someone whose attention drifted away just long enough to swerve into oncoming traffic. The results are often devastating and those involved soon find themselves seeking the guidance of a Dallas personal injury attorney to help determine who was at fault and to seek financial remuneration for those suffering serious injury at the hands of another's negligence.

While each car crash is different, they are all examined under the same set of tort law principles and legal procedures that apply to these types of actions in Texas. Usually, a police investigation follows an accident, culminating in an official report that often assigns blame for the collision. In addition, when motor vehicle and/or criminal laws appear to have been broken, authorities may arrest one or more parties. While convictions for the offenses charged may have a bearing on any subsequent civil actions for monetary damages, each injured person would likely benefit from separately consulting a personal injury lawyer Dallas.

The Dallas Injury Lawyer will assist the victim in reviewing all of the information gathered concerning the collision with a view towards determining which party or parties were legally responsible for the car crash. Once a decision has been made, the lawyer can offer advice about the appropriate manner in which to proceed to protect one's legal rights and recover all damages to which the victim is rightfully entitled. All important evidence will be examined and preserved for use at trial, if necessary. Further, the Dallas Personal Injury Lawyer will contact and likely negotiate with the insurance company for the at fault party in an attempt to amicably resolve the dispute without the need for often time-consuming court proceedings.

Of course, it is not always possible to avoid litigation. Sometimes, proceeding with a lawsuit is the only viable means of achieving the appropriate recovery indicated by the injuries incurred. As the claim and any related lawsuit develop, many important decisions will need to be made, ranging from who should be included in the proceedings as defendants to making an informed decision as to what amount is necessary and appropriate to settle the claims.

At times, these types of matters can only be resolved by proceeding to trial. Litigation is an important and confusing area of the law involving seemingly conflicting laws and procedures. To prevail, an personal injury attorney Dallas will work to learn every detail of the accident and its aftermath, including the specific nature and extent of each injury claimed. From the beginning of proceedings during jury selection through the final verdict, the lawyer will necessarily resort to his or her experience in the relevant law and procedure as it is applied in the state of Texas.

Article Source:

<http://www.articleside.com/business-articles/personal-injury-action-from-car-crash-to-recovery.htm> - Article Side

Gordon Russo - About Author:

a Dallas Injury Lawyer, a Dallas personal injury lawyer

Article Keywords:

dallas injury lawyer,dallas personal injury lawyer,dallas personal injury attorney,personal injury attorney dallas,personal injury lawyer dallas

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!