Legal Separation:

Legal separation is as same as divorce though; these are different in legal terms. As previous matter, here also both spouses must be ready for legal separation. If either of spouses refuses for legal separation and wants divorce, the court will proceed for divorce and cancels the Petition for legal separation. Often couples prefer to end their marriages by choosing legal separation rather than divorce due to some religious reasons. As like divorce procedure, the court applies the orders for the same problems in legal separation such as parenting plan, child custody and property and monetary division.

However legal separation applies same proceedings as like divorce, but it doesn't provide divorce to one spouse from other. Once a legal separation is applied, none of both can legally marry with another person unless the legal separation is turned to divorce. If either spouse wants to convert a legal separation into divorce, the legally separated spouses have to wait till six months after filing for legal separation. Eventually, the social security administration never recognizes a legal separation in its social rules.

We, at Eagle Law Offices P.S. with our experienced legal professionals help you in legal separation. The Seattle divorce attorney helps you in legal separation, divorce, child protection and other family matters. Thus, when you come to us, we leave you with the results in whose desire you came.
