Millions of people in this country have successfully negotiated a course of driving lessons Northampton before passing their driving test and getting on the road. Some see them as a means to an end; some think they are a chore; some even enjoy them.

Whatever bracket you will fall into, it is important to embark on a course of driving lessons Northampton with a specialist firm that can equip you with all the skills and knowledge you will need on the road. Here is some need-to-know information about these highly sought after services:

You need to obtain a provisional driving licence in order to begin driving lessons Watford. You could say that driving lessons Northampton consist of "on-the-job"™ training. In other words you get the hands-on experience of actually getting behind the wheel and driving.

Of course this is all done under the close supervision of a fully qualified instructor who will tell you all that you need to know. Driving lessons Northampton usually begin on quiet roads where you get the hang of things like the accelerator and brake pedals, the clutch and steering wheel. As time goes by and you get more competent it is then better to try and negotiate more challenging stretches with heavier traffic and the likes of traffic lights, box junctions and roundabouts.

These days driving lessons Northampton will typically take place in a car equipped with dual controls. These consist of an identical set of pedals in the passenger foot well for the instructor or examiner to operate in the event of an emergency. For instance if the learner driver attempts to pull out onto a main road at the wrong time during one of their driving lessons Northampton then their mentor can apply the brakes.
