Article published on June 22nd 2012 | Business

The decision of Spain of making out a request in order to get a loan that can go up to 100 billion euros that is 125 billion dollars which will amount to 80 billion pounds in the form of help from the other countries of eurozone as cash so that the banks of the country who are struggling might get help in a proper sense.

The International Monetary Fund that is IMF had to say that a bailout of this amount is quite capable of making the credibility of the banks of Spain in to an up-to-date condition.

Washington also had a positive attitude for this measure which an important and necessary step so that financial unity can be brought into the eurozone up to some level. Emergency talks were done just a few days back by the finance ministers of the country of the eurozone where they took this decision.

Christine Lagarde, managing director of International Monetary Fund that IMF informed that the planning that has been done for the betterment of Spain, is going to offer assurance to the country for the fulfillment of the financial needs of the country so that the requirements of the system of banking of Spain can be met in a proper manner.

She further added that she is completely in support of the decision that has been taken by Eurogroup that s going to be in support of the measures which have been taken by the authorities of Spain in the past few weeks so that they can bring strength back in the system of banking. She also had to say that the IMF just need a signal from the Eurogroup and It if going to come forward to implement as well as monitor the fiscal backing that is required from proper regulation. IMF is absolutely ready to do what is being expected from it.

Timothy Geithner, Treasury Secretary, the United States had to say she is very much in appreciation of this move of providing help of the economy of Spain as well as taking strong steps towards taking a step for the task of financial union.
