The Role of a Criminal Defense Lawyer by .

Article published on June 19th 2012 | Business

Being convicted for a criminal case is a nightmare for any person. Unfortunately there have been many instances where people are convicted on criminal charges, say for example Driving Under the Influence also known as DUI. Experiencing such an event can be traumatizing and can cause a lot of stress for the person who is charged as well as the family. Such situations need to be handled with expertise and caution. This is where a Queens Criminal Defense Lawyer comes into the picture.

There are many reputable Queens Criminal Defense Law Firm you can look into to find someone to represent you or a loved one in their case. One should never make the mistake of representing oneself in a criminal case. The only result you will get is imprisonment and a fine that can financially drain you as they can be quite a hefty sum. Legal matters and the law can be difficult to interpret which is why it is better to leave such matters to people who have more experience and expertise in the field.

There are a number of roles that a Queens criminal defense lawyer plays. The first thing that they need to do is investigate the case in a thorough manner. This helps them assess the case and the severity of the accusations against you. Once the assessment is done, they will be able to prepare and present a strong case in your defense in court.

Very often, a criminal attorney will prepare crucial papers and documents for the case. For preparing the requisite documents, your lawyer will need to obtain warrants for search and interrogation purposes. With the help of these warrants, they can interview witnesses and gather information to use in your defense. Many times, based on the information they have gathered, they can also prepare complaints against your arrest.

Your lawyer will then appeal for your bail and for lowering your penalties and punishments. They will represent you and defend your case in the court against the prosecutor. If you have been wrongfully arrested or charged, your defense lawyer will prove your innocence and make appeals to the court to have the charges against you dropped.
