Where to find security recruitment services by Janis Buchanan

Article published on March 28th 2012 | Business

Bodyguardnation.com is a website that specializes in security detail and offers security recruitment services to everyone who is interested in hiring a security officer.

There are several positions that can be filled by security officers and these include private detectives, personal bodyguards, bar and restaurant security, event security detail, armed security and many more. Bodyguardnation.com has the required expertise and also the capacity to interview and screen all these types of professionals.

Their interviews are very comprehensive and are aimed at ensuring that the final outcome of the exercise is a professional that can deliver exactly what the client needs with regard to security operations.

Security recruitment can take place in two ways. First of all, if you are too busy to take part in the recruitment process but want apt employees, you can hand over the entire recruitment exercise to bodyguardnation.com and let them shortlist, pre-interview, screen, and find you the right candidate for the job. This is all done at a reasonable fee that is much less than what you would spend going through resumes and carrying out interviews. This is the first package.

The second package is for employers who need help recruiting security personnel but who would also like to participate at least partially in the process. In this case, the company only does the pre-interviews over the phone and then sends five candidates who they feel fit your needs best. It is then the work of the employer to screen the candidates and decide who is best.

Finding security jobs may sound easy but the truth is that the devastating state of the world economy has affected all sectors including the security industry. It is a lot easier to go through job posting sites such as bodyguardnation.com to land the job you want. This website is a perfect way of uniting the perfect employee with the perfect employer.
