Shalwar Kameez – the Traditional Attire of Pakistan: Ameercornor

Article published on July 17th 2012 | Clothing

The country of Pakistan shows a mixture of different traditions and cultures that can be seen from the food and dressing habits of the people. Even though, the national sport of the country is field hockey, many people show interest on cricket. When it comes to traditional dresses for women in the nation, Shalwar Kameez is national dress and this dress has gained popularity in other nations like India as well. Kameez denotes the top portion and shalwar denotes the bottom portion.

Shalwars are loose pants that are designed in different styles and they are flared in the bottom with fancy cutwork. Even though, there are several changes as compared to the traditional model, the base model remains the same. Not only Pakistani women, but men are also wearing this attire, but in a different form. Due to the comfort factor offered by this costume, it has acquired wide popularity among women belonging to different nations. Normally, in conventional model, the pant is tied to the waist using a drawstring and nowadays, elastic models are also sold. A slight variation to this attire is the churidars, which has narrow tight fitting shalwars as compared to the tapering or baggy model pants in Shalwar Kameez.

As mentioned earlier, kameez denotes the top portion of the attire and it is a loose and large fitting and both men and women wear it with difference in fitting and silhouettes. To add femininity to the kameez, interesting patterns are added and another attachment to the dress is dupattas, which are long yards of cloth matching the kameez and the shalwar.

Some of the top designers like Gul Ahmed dresses are offering this costume for women with wide range of attractive designs. There are online dealers with a wide collection of churidars from different designers and selection of the best online store can enable women to find the best collection.

With online shopping gaining importance these days, dresses are no exception to this. Men and women wish to purchase costumes online and that too when designs from the top brand names like Gul Ahmed dresses are offered, they are of course attracted to the online stores offering branded materials.

So, what are you waiting for go to your computer and get your internet connected and visit a best site offering the best collection from top designers and get your favorite costume at the comfort of your home.
