Article published on April 16th 2012 | Clothing

Whether shirt, suit or pants, men want a flawless fit, which is why they opt for custom clothing options over ready-to-wear garments. But not all custom tailors provide good service. Some are unprofessional in their work, while others do not guarantee a picture perfect fit. Here are some key aspects to look for in a professional tailor:

Own Website

A professional tailor should own a website featuring key aspects of his services and skills. The website should be easily navigable and show a list of fabrics and accessories. It should also have a shopping cart and a separate wish list for clients.

Custom Tailoring Options

The tailor should provide a separate page for clients to "build" their own wardrobe. Custom tailoring gives clients freedom to choose their own fabric, style and color. Clients should be able to assemble their wardrobe portfolio easily. For example: If a client wants a custom shirt, then he should be able to assemble by choosing the best options from a variety of fabrics, style, looks and color.
