Various Styles of Urban Wearing cloths by Ricky Williams

Article published on February 17th 2012 | Clothing

There have been many discussions on the issue of the cloths that are worn by today's urban population. The clothes that these people wear are very much different from those that are worn by the people from the previous generation. These clothes include those which are the trademarks of the 60's and 70's, as well as they are also very much different from those of the 90's era too. It has been 12 years since we have entered the 21st century and that this whole clothing line that is to be found hanging over those stores have got changed a lot. If one has got a picture of the streets of an urban city of the America from the time of the early 80's, and the same place in this 2012, the person could easily depict the difference of the two pictures. These two pictures vary a lot in not only the environment and the increase in the glamour of the place but also in the whole dressing of the people there in the picture. The places like the Times Square in the America as well as the Piccadilly Circus in London are the places for the studying of the styles and fashions of urban wear clothing lines.

These clothes include the things they wear which include those shirts, t-shirts as well as the head dress and also the shoes and accessories. The accessory is one of the main things which have changed a lot in the fashion in the fast few decades. Those long hats have been replaced violently by the snap hat which has been a popular one after the World War II, when the American style phenomena engrossed the whole world. The snap hat is easy to wear and what the urban people term it looks like hip-hop. This style wear have been found to be one of the most important changes in the fashion industry, as the other dress materials have evolved standing on the base of a fundamental design. But this hat has got its sole representation and can be thus termed is an invention of the century that we are residing in or rather truly speaking is the invention of the last few decades of the past century and millennia. The urban wear clothing is one of the most important things that need to be studied if someone tries to study the whole element of the urban class development and the development of the society after the World War II.
