End of lease cleaning can be a difficult business and if you're not careful you could end up with very little return on your initial bond returned to you when you vacate the premises.

The first thing to do is dust off that document organizer and find the checklist that you received when you moved in that shows the real side of all the wall, windows, carpets and appliances in the premises when you moved in. This should give you a good idea of what state the premises was in when you first moved in. And this is what you should be aiming for with your end of lease clean. If there was a stain on the wall or carpet when you moved in and it was duly noted on the sheet then there's no need to worry about it, just concentrate on the discrepancies between what's on the sheet and what in the home.

Broken items can often be a source of major with-holdings by landlords so it's often best to try and
