Time for Relocation? What if I Have Plants? by Kostas Theodoropoulos

Article published on May 20th 2012 | Customer Service

Most of us are attracted by the beauties of nature, especially as far as plants are concerned. Green leaves of different shapes, colorful and fragrant flowers compose a welcoming and warm scenery making people calm down and relax. After a tiring working day there is nothing better than having some sophisticated moments in a lovely place filled with plants and flowers. What is more, some people evade while taking care of their plants too. This is the reason why different types of plants are usually decorating our houses giving some of their pure glory to our place.

However, moving your plants will surely prove a difficult task, especially because of their fragility. Unfortunately you can easily hurt your plants while moving so you should better make a good plan before you decide to take them away, otherwise you may cause damage. Using the internet you will be able to find reputable moving companies that would be able to transfer your plants safely. This is what my sister did recently.

MOVING PLANTS

Moving a plant to a new residence is more difficult than what you may think. The risk of damage is huge and sometimes the plants will never recover. Consider what would happen if you had to move many different flowerpots with your delicate plants. Not having an idea of how to cope with such a move you would probably have serious difficulties.

Alicia used to have numerous flowerpots in her balcony in which there were beautiful exotic flowers which my sister had been collecting for years. Nonetheless after she gave birth she had to move to a bigger house. She started carrying some of her plants to her new house by herself as she thought that this would be an easy task. As for the result? She damaged almost half of her plants during the transfer.

SAFE WAYS FOR MOVING PLANTS

The problem about my sister's plant transfer was that she had no idea of how to protect her plants during the transfer and mostly the most delicate ones. She just placed some of the smaller ones in her car's trunk keeping them close enough to each other so as to keep them in place and she placed the bigger ones on the seats. When she finally arrived home she found her plants turned inside out, most of them completely destroyed. No need to mention that she felt upset.

Luckily enough most of my sister's impressive flowers still remained in her balcony and Alice decided to make sure that this time her flowers would reach their destination safely. This is the reason why my sister decided to look for reliable and cheap Melbourne furniture Movers company, in order to take her plants to her new house. After a thorough search in several websites she managed to find reliable Melbourne Removalists that made her move a breeze.

My sister realized that each plant should be cared separately before the move, in order to protect their foliage and flowers. The movers carefully packed the flowers wrapping their branches with paper tissue in order to protect them during the transfer. They also took good care of the breakable pots. They placed them in a van where they had all fresh air they needed and they were placed to the new location safe and sound. After all, using their experience and all the equipment needed the movers managed to protect my sister's plants.

MAKE YOUR MOVE AN EASY ONE

If you have to move delicate plants on your own make sure that you got properly prepared so that they won't suffer damage. Under no circumstances the best possible way to move your plants is to hire professional movers that will be able to transfer your plants fast and most important safely to your new residence. Address reputable furniture movers and give your flourey friends the chance to remain as such.
