researches that are continuing in already established facts and while there are others that are contributing to new un-discovered ideologies, technologies or facts. But in all the one word that summarizes the contents of a research work is hard work. Therefore while working upon research the student has to bear in mind the focus of his or her subject matter which he or she intends to work upon. There are some basic steps that we at homework help have identified to be taken up:-

Defining the Issue / Problem

There should be a complete clarity while defining an issue or a problem. It should contain well defined words and which summarizes the contents and the areas which will be worked upon during the course of the research work. The narration should be well worded.

Subject Contents

This should carry the general description of the subject contents and how it would be fitted into the area or field of study matter that is being focused upon. Details supported with facts, figures and references would also pave a better way for understanding. The significance as to why certain aspects are narrated in the subject. The use of examples through case studies etc would highly enhance the supportive of the hypotheses.

Viewpoint

In the course of describing the view point, the students should be aware that the conditions are narrated of the environment surrounding. Brief outlay along with information of the same may be shared.

Terms, Vocabulary, Definitions

The endeavor to use of authoritative sources along with a combination of definitions and footnote regarding the sources of information gathered has a clear standing. The narration of the same should be objective and having specific details. While narrating please ensure chronological order for the reader to relate.

Working on the Hypotheses

While defining the same, utmost care should be exercised to determine and test whether the hypotheses is strong enough to prove its matter, whether true or false. The content should carry some variables which are measurable and those that can be manipulated or amended. The results should define a particular reference of scale giving a clear direction of the outcome.

Methodology

The methodology should carry a description of the process; procedures followed etc. which should be well defined. The samples taken in the inferences should be characterized well. A consistency in the processes is desirable to maintain proper findings. List on the variable used, should also be defined.

Results or Outcome

The results are normally some data or information, which is crude in its receipt. However the students need to work upon on it and define the same under some measurable standards.

Discussion or argument

The discussion or argument is purely based upon the findings or the outcome. For the same the information or data received will have to be interpreted. With these findings or outcome, the hypothesis will have to be validated. Then the other part being the influence or the impact the outcome or findings leaves. Then in certain cases another line of action is inferred, from these findings a further in-depth research may also follow and so on.

Conclusion

While concluding the matter, there will be a repetition of certain facts summarizing the outcome or results and discussion or argument. This summary of the conclusion should be mentioned briefly defining and re-stating certain facts, which are relevant to the issue. Therefore proving the hypotheses either true or the opposite.

References

Again a brief reference of the sources dug out from and some gory details to be mentioned supported with a vote of thanks. References should carry names, details of the matter utilized in the outcome or findings.

Recommendation / Suggestion

While concluding the area of recommendation / suggestions is always positively directed, wherein the mention of certain findings, related to the hypotheses, are given. This suggestion paves the way giving directions in newer areas relating to the findings and the outcome.
