The concept and dimension of distance learning have undergone a drastic change in the past few years. The conventional gesture of attaining regular classes is gradually giving space to distance education. Today e learning has reached a successful juncture and giving a tough competition to the regular campus education. It is highly recognized and widely adopted today. Even MBA courses can also be studied online today.

Fields of distance learning

Distance learning offers courses for graduate, post graduate, diploma courses and other certificate degrees. Even research degrees are also obtained through distance learning from few reputed universities. Mainstream subjects as well as management and technical subjects are also taught through online courses. It can be termed as a student friendly education system, as the students can get the degrees as per their convenient time frame. They aspirants can take help from the respected professors attached with that particular university, or he can avail the benefits of online library for additional information.

Online MBA education

An MBA is a highly admired qualification of business administration nowadays. This management degree has equal importance through out the globe. Therefore, students from various fields are showing interest in getting a management degree. Even working professionals are interested in seeking the degree simultaneously with his business engagements or service. Once it was impossible to get both degrees at a time or to pursue education along with other engagements. However, it is no longer a problem today. Students can also opt for online MBA without hampering other commitments. Regular management degrees are pretty expensive to attain, however, online courses are much cost saving. The duration of distance learning courses depend upon the rules of the universities.

Criteria for online management courses

Different universities have stated different criteria for admission or enrolment of distance learning students. However, all the universities ask for graduate students with good marks from a recognized university. Students who already have a diploma degree in management can easily apply for such courses. However, some universities may not recognize the diploma degrees according to their terms and condition.

Placements offered Universities

Students have many distorted notions that the distance certificates may not bear the same value like the regular students. Therefore, it is essential to mention that even the students of distance MBA courses are getting the equal opportunity to get placed in top ranked multinational companies. Such courses are opening new vistas and avenues to the students.
