

Article Side

Editing Dissertations – Make Sure That Your Dissertation is Free from Errors Dyanna Santos

Article published on December 14th 2011 | Education

Dissertation is a very lengthy and overwhelming process. It requires a lot of hard work and constant repetitive revision to make sure that the document is error proof. Usually, master students are engaged in many other activities and commitments of their institute other than editing dissertations. In such circumstances, most of the faults and mistakes in the writing slip from their sight and mind.

Therefore, it is recommended that the essay must be checked several times to make it fault proof and perfect in every aspect.

Factors that are responsible for such mistakes are usually one of the following:

1. Students are under pressure of submitting the document on time
2. They are trying very hard to achieve best possible grades
3. The research work is very tiring and exhausting
4. Of course, there are other engagements other than research writing
5. The atmosphere, if not suitable or appropriate, can also create diversions in the mind of a student, leading to silly mistakes.

Dissertation proof reading ensures that the mistakes that occur because of the above mentioned reasons are properly dealt with and the document is fault proof. Those students who are writing research essay for the first time have a tendency of stretching it by repeating certain phrases again and again just to reach the word limit. Therefore, fresh writers are the ones usually who end up doing these mistakes.

The purpose of proof reading is very obvious. Every student want to create a dissertation that has quality of work and clarity in it. For this reason, professors recommend that the students must revise the work as many times as possible so that they do not have to face the rejection. It is to make sure that you are following the theme of your dissertation, and that you having placed all the citations and have not missed including any reference in the bibliography. Things like that can be very important when it comes to a quality dissertation.

There can be other type of mistakes as well. Some of them are as follows:

1. spelling errors
2. grammatical errors
3. improper placement of punctuation marks
4. incorrect formatting of the thesis
5. incorrect formatting of the bibliography
6. unsuitable presentation of the thesis

7. disagreement between facts

8. and discrepancy in writing technique

As a student, it might be very difficult for you to check and edit dissertation that is written by you. Most students fail to identify their mistakes even if they go through their work several times. It is better that you relax your mind, and don't set your heart on the opinion that you hate proof reading; otherwise you will never be able to do it.

Even then if you think that you can't proof read your work, then ask a friend or a professor to proof read it for you. You can also hire an online proof reading specialist who will do it for you in a very low cost.

Article Source:

<http://www.articleside.com/education-articles/editing-dissertations-make-sure-that-your-dissertation-is-free-from-errors.htm> - Article Side

Donna Santos - About Author:

Donna Santos is a senior research writer and provides help for a Editing dissertations and a Dissertation edit. Feel free to contact for any sort of help in this regard.

Article Keywords:

Editing dissertations, Dissertation edit

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!