

Article published on December 27th 2011 | Education

You need to be extremely prudent while selecting the right school for your kid. This is one task which needs to be handled with responsibility and care. While a wrong selection can jeopardize your kid's future the right institution can make all the difference to your child's career.

With so many residential schools coming up, the parent most likely tends to get confused about the way to select the best boarding school. There are certain criteria which you should check and assess before coming to a final conclusion.

• The school location:-

You are sending the precious one away from home for the first time. Hence it is very natural that as a parent you will feel concerned and tensed. You need to look for schools which offer the perfect peaceful ambiance where kids can grow up under able guidance of loving faculties. Many residential schools have come up amidst lush greenery with lots of open spaces, beautiful buildings along with state-of-the-art facilities. Boarding facilities are of excellent standard including clean and spacious rooms, nutritious food, medical facilities and all other relevant options. You can always opt for such an institution. However, make sure that the school is easily accessible too, in case you need to reach the place on an emergency basis.

• Academics and course curriculum:-

Different schools have their own unique way of imparting education. There are many schools which follow CBSE board. At the same time, the course curriculum is designed keeping international standard into consideration. This helps the student to adjust at any location and environment if he/she decides to study or work abroad. Starting from Montessori, the student can study till 12th standard in the same institution. While selecting a school, you need to check on the school faculty, their education and experience. An analysis of the school's past performances will surely help in giving clear picture in this regard.

• Extra curricular activities:-

An important aspect about the best boarding school is its range of extra-curricular activities. These schools encourage kids to take up any activity of his/her choice like music, dance, drama, art & craft, Information Technology, yoga, gymnasium, creative writing, science club, environment & nature and different types of sports. Most schools have spacious playgrounds, sports rooms and campuses. Thus students can participate in different indoor and outdoor activities during their free time. Students not only have fun indulging in these activities but can also learn something unique and new which can add further value to their resume.

If you are looking for the best residential school from nearby or distant location, then an online search can prove to be helpful and less time consuming too. By browsing different school websites, you can collect all necessary information. For further clarification, you can also get in touch with the school administration personally. You need admission information well in advance so that the kid gets ample time for preparation. Hence, an early enquiry is always recommended.

Article Source:

<http://www.articleside.com/education-articles/ensure-a-bright-future-for-your-kid-with-the-best-boarding-school.htm> - Article Side

Johnsmith - About Author:

John Smith is an educationist, closely associated with several education institutions and boarding schools. He has written a number of informative articles with tips to select the a best boarding school.

Article Keywords:

best boarding school

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!