Article published on July 13th 2012 | Family

Nanny is an individual who provides a service in caring one or more children in a family. Modern Nannies may live in the house or out based on the circumstances and requirements of the employers. There are professional nannies trained and certified in cardiopulmonary resuscitation, child development and qualified in First Aid. Government registration of Nannies may or may not be required depending on the country. There are different types of Nannies namely, live in nanny, live out nanny, Nanny Share, Night nanny or maternity nanny and many others. Generally nannies will be in the age group of 20's to 60's.

New York City has many Nanny Agencies which help people hire nannies as per their specific requirements. There are many Nanny Agencies NYC licensed under the New York City department of consumer affairs. The nanny agency nyc will conduct background checks on Nannies sometimes by private investigative agencies. Reference checks will also be done for character and work references. The Nanny agency NYC generally consults and speaks to the client to understand their requirements, needs. Also it is very essential to know the family's way of parenting, the standard of care that is provided to the children and the household. These all help in understanding the standard or level of expectation from the Nanny.

The International Nanny Association is formed to help, educate, guide and provide information to industry professionals and the public. The members include Nanny Agencies, Nanny Employers, Nannies, industry service providers and educators. They aim at professionalizing the industry by setting high levels for nanny agencies and industry professionals. They help in educating parents in hiring well qualified Nannies.

Nannies are very important in a child's life and play a vital role in nurturing a child's life. The nanny will be responsible in enhancing and enriching the child's life. So it is of prime importance to make a perfect match between the families and the nanny.
