Three evening dress styles for spring/summer 2012 by Joe Mason

Article published on May 9th 2012 | Fashion

Spring is springing and before you know it summer will be with us. All the new season styles are starting to drift into high street and designer stores all over the land and before long fresh fashion trends will completely be embraced. So what can you expect from evening dresses this season?

Let's scour Coast evening dresses to give us some idea of the latest seasonal styles. Never forget that you can search through all of these Coast evening dresses online using the website's lookbook, that is a fantastic source of inspiration in terms of styling and accessories.

First up is the Holly Dress in lemon. All tones of yellow from vibrant canary to pastel lemon are in favour this summer. The brighter hues tap into the Latin-esque tropical look, while the softer hues, demonstrated here with the Holly Dress, are in line with the pastel look. This dress boasts a strapless twisted bustier, fitted waist and tulip skirt. This is pretty much the freshest of all of the Coast evening dresses UK and we absolutely love it.

The Tia Maxi Dress is meant to get you noticed and an evening dress of this craftsmanship will definitely get you noticed for all the right reasons. The mesmerising striped asymmetric pattern in vivid colours of red, turquoise, yellow, purple, pink and white is perfect for the tropical and colour clash styles. The flowing chiffon that's elegantly ruffled to the right side paired with a high-round neck, cut-away shoulders and a cinched waist creates a feminine, dramatic silhouette that exudes glamour and playfulness.

Last but definitely not least, is the Ama Dress. This monochromatic design is total perfection. An understated, sixties shape white shift with dropped waist and black hem exudes class and sophistication. This is a perfect black tie dress, however it wouldn't look out of place in a club.

With each of these dresses remember to accessories fitting. The Holly Dress looks fantastic with complementary pastel shades; lilac sandals will look sensational. The Tia Maxi Dress is in your face, but don't play down accessories; work the clashing trend with neon bright platform stilettos and charm bracelets. For the Ama Dress stick with the monochrome style and work in black courts and sterling silver jewellery.
