

Article Side

Services offered by Health and Safety Consultants by James Blee

Article published on June 16th 2012 | Health

Health and safety consultants will work alongside a wide range of businesses offering their expert advice and guidance on all aspects of health and safety in the workplace and health and safety training. Health and safety is about ensuring that people are safe in the workplace and don't sustain any injuries or ill effects from carrying out their jobs. There are many legal health and safety procedures and policies that companies must embrace in order to comply with this legislation and ensure the safety of their workforce. With so much policy in this area it can be difficult for companies to keep abreast of all health and safety guidelines. This is why many companies will employ health and safety consultants to offer advice on all current policies.

Health and safety consultants tend to offer a range of different services that can be tailored to a business's particular needs. Typical services offered by health and safety consultants include health and safety policy and procedure development, risk assessment development, method statement development, site audits, online and telephone advisory services and a range of health and safety training courses. If you want to have one or a number of trained health and safety staff in your workplace then you will need to contact health and safety consultants who can conduct professional and thorough health and safety training with your employees. Some companies will offer online health and safety training and this is ideal as participants can do the course at their own pace as and when they have time to do it.

Some health and safety consultants will run health and safety training courses at dedicated training centres and there are many different courses to choose from depending on the industry you are in and the people that are attending. Popular health and safety courses include manual handling courses, working at heights, risk assessment courses, hazard identification courses, hoist training, gas safety training and many other health and safety courses.

Article Source:

<http://www.articleside.com/health-articles/services-offered-by-health-and-safety-consultants.htm> - Article Side

James Blee - About Author:

At atlsafety.co.uk we have the most professional and experienced a Health and safety consultants who provide an efficient and reliable service. All a health and safety training is taught by seasoned specialists.

Article Keywords:

health and safety training, Health and safety consultants