If you live in Arlington and want your roof repaired or replaced, there are many roof materials you can choose from that will suit your home's architecture and your budget. Some of these include asphalt, metal, tile and wood. Whichever material you use, all these can guarantee maximum protection during any weather.

Asphalt is the number choice for American homeowners. It comes in different grades that offer varying life spans that range from 15 to 30 years. This material is a composite of fiberglass or rag mat with asphalt, covered with mineral granules. When damaged, asphalt shingles can be replaced individually.

Metal is another popular choice for homeowners. It is more expensive than asphalt but is more durable. Metal comes in panels or shingles and can match the appearance of tile, asphalt or slate. Metal can further be colored according to your choice. It is highly resistant to corrosion and weathering and is energy-efficient as well.

Tile roofing is a more aesthetic option for Arlington homeowners. It is made from concrete or clay and lasts over 50 years. It comes in a wide range of styles which include mission, rounded and flat. Tiles are priced almost the same as wood, and are suitable for homeowners who have a specific motif for their home.

A wood roof can give your Arlington home a natural look. Wood shingles are pressure treated with chemicals to make them fire resistant and last longer. As wood ages, it becomes brittle and shrinks, but individual wood tiles can be replaced. If you are in the process of building your home, these options are all available from your roofing contractor.

The quality of your new roof, installed by reliable Arlington roofing contractors, ensures you protection during any weather condition. While heavy rainfall and extreme humidity are unpreventable, your home will be safe with premium quality roofing installed by expert builders. You can rely on their expertise for workmanship that's artistic and durable. If you don't have an idea of kind of roofing you want and need, your roofers can provide options that will suit your preference and budget.
