If one will think about it, every phase in a person's life is marked by the ritual of buying furniture. At birth, parents purchase bassinets, cribs, and rocking chairs. As a rite of passage when we become teens, we get our own room and the double-decker that we share with our siblings gets replaced by our own bed. Fast forward to getting to college which means having our dorms or off campus apartments furnished. And as we get married, we get a house and buy new set of furniture.

For many, furniture is not just an assortment of things to keep a space occupied. It reflects our personalities and makes our lives comfortable. That is why it is important to know how to get the best deals which can be achieved through an online furniture retailer.

There are kinds of furniture that can be classified as essential. These are the ones that a typical home or living space need to make it functional and comfortable. Many retailers tend to give emphasis on these types of furniture because no living space can really be considered complete without them. But the level of necessity is dependent to each person as a college student's needs is different to those who are newly weds.

When it comes to essential furniture, the bed tops the list for many people. Whether it is a house, a one bedroom apartment or a college dorm, a bed is essential. Retailers offer a lot of deals when it comes to beds and as a customer, the variety of choices can be overwhelming.

In picking a bed, it needs to be high quality and comfortable. A sturdy mattress made of high quality form or a spring mattress with durable top lining. One can choose to get a bed with an accompanying mattress while some can pick them separately. It is always good to pick those with guarantees or warranties that go beyond three years. Retailers selling very high quality mattresses often offer ten year warranties or more. This level of guarantee only means that the product you are buying is of good quality because the seller is showing so much confidence in their product.

After picking the mattress, the bed frame comes next. Some people do not bother to buy a frame for the mattress but for those who still like the traditional setup, it is best to pick a bed frame that is not too high or too low. The rule of thumb in picking the height of the bed frame, the mattress must not go beyond the hips. If two people will be sleeping in a bed, the shorter person's height should be the one who is relative to the bed. The bed frame can either be made of hard wood or metal like aluminum which depends on your preference. Wooden frames are popular because they are durable and looks really great. Metal bed frames are cheaper than wooden beds but they are made of metal tubes or wires to support the mattress which can bend out of shape over time.

When it comes to the living room, the couch is the essential furniture. It is the center of activity among family and friends that is why choosing the best quality couch or sofa is very important. There are a lot of retailers selling furniture online that offers a variety of styles and designs. A great couch must be able to accommodate at least three people or more. You can also opt to buy a multi-purpose sofa bed if you plan to entertain guests a lot. Though they are a little more expensive than a regular sofa, multi-purpose furniture can help you save money compared to buying another bed for the guest room or a roll-away bed.

Last on the list of essential furniture is the dining table. This can be optional more so if you are still single or a college student. But for a family or someone who is planning to start one, a dining table is essential because it is another center of activity. Unlike the living room where there are distractions (television or gaming consoles), the dining room helps people to talk and interact more intimately. Buying a durable dining furniture set made of wood is best because of the high variety. Glass is another option and they look very modern but if you have boisterous children, these can cause accidents. Online furniture retailers tend to offer various deals and options for dining room furniture though choose one that is suited for your space and the amount of people who will most use it. There is no point buying a large twelve-sitter when there are only two of you dining every night.
