Article published on June 19th 2012 | Home Improvement

Ask any construction professional or interior designer and they will probably inform you that Perrin and Rowe taps would make an excellent addition to all sorts of homes. The ideal blend of supreme functionality and good looks, it is no wonder that they remain so highly sought after by homeowners, designers and professionals who value practicality and style. With that in mind here is a guide to Perrin and Rowe taps:

If you are hitherto unfamiliar with Perrin and Rowe then you may be interested to hear that it is one of the leading brands when it comes to tap units. Designed and engineered in the UK, its products are generally aimed at the top end of the interior design market and are sleek and subtle in appearance as well as effective at their job. In other words Perrin and Rowe taps are easy on the eye and versatile enough to blend with all sorts of interior designs. However they are best incorporated into a contemporary layout.

Perrin and Rowe taps are manufactured for kitchen sink units and bathroom sinks and tubs. Obviously there are different requirements for each one so these differ in shape, size and design. All in all Perrin and Rowe taps are worth considering whether you are having a new kitchen fitted or are putting a brand new bathroom in.

Perrin and Rowe taps “ along with all other types of taps for that matter “ are particularly important as they provide a vital function as a source of water but also have an impact on the aesthetics of a kitchen or bathroom space. In conjunction with things like Schock sinks they have a significant impact on the feel of the whole area.

Where can I find a supplier of Perrin and Rowe taps?
