If you own a restaurant, you will find it really difficult when it comes to decorate your restroom. Decorating a restaurant's bathroom is one of the interesting tasks for an experienced interior designer. Many of the restaurant owners often forget bathroom areas and spend their entire budget on other things without considering the fact that bathroom area plays a major role in increasing the sales of the facility. As a businessman, you would never want to leave any element that could be beneficial for your business.

Now when it comes to do up your restaurant's bathroom area, there is a lot you can do. By bringing creative design elements from the dining room into the bathroom, you can create a space that blends with the restaurant, rather than giving customers the feeling that they left the building when they stepped into the restroom.

If you own an Italian-style restaurant, make sure you decorate the restroom in clean lines to give a tidy look to the area. You can also buy ceramic, marble, or travertine tiles from Italy to create a more luxurious appearance. Place potted plants, such as grapevines, along the ceiling line to drape down the walls.

For a Spanish-style restaurant, placing mosaic tiling along the floor and walls in the restroom would be a great idea. Rustic wood trim and wrought iron mirror framing and statues also create an attractive Hacienda-style bathroom in the restaurant. Avoid stainless steel and shiny faucets, door knobs and wastebaskets; choose bronzed finishes instead.

Don't choose bathroom partitions outright; instead choose them after a comprehensive research. Be it restroom dividers or toilet cubicles, choose standard quality products that not only ensure durability but give a stunning visual appeal to the entire restaurant. Paint the walls with high-gloss paints. Avoid applying a textured finish, as large numbers of people could touch the walls every day.

If you want to use art works, make sure you place them high along the wall so that people can't touch them directly. Choose ceiling corners to hang small objects on corner shelving. Drape plants around the ceiling line around the room. Put toiletries in lockable storage boxes. You can place toilet paper, hand towels, soap and cleaning supplies in a locked metal or wooden box. Try to make the best use of the available space and choose restroom dividers accordingly. If you're using bathroom partitions, use them in such a way so that their doors don't block the passage in the restroom.
