We are dwelling in a modern and high tech era. World is progressing at a rapid pace making new advancement and developments each new day. The most recent development in the field of marketing is social media marketing. It has now gone main-stream. Big corporate and companies are catching up on to the power of online marketing, giving a new rise to the marketing strategies. Social media marketing is a process of gaining traffic, audience and attention through social media websites to build a two way communication and social relationship between the company owners and consumers. Social media lets you interact with others, create and promote your brand in a way that it gets links and viral attraction reaching the target audience in a fast and convenient way.

Social media marketing makes customers and consumers more proactive, and they can create new methods of purchase and might abandon the traditional ones. It gives marketers a firsthand knowledge about consumers's™ behavior and then they can formulate their marketing strategies accordingly. Social review and video sharing websites allows the target audience to communicate about their demands, preferences and opinions and they might serve as endorsers for your new brand or business. People are more influenced by peers, rather than through press releases of products through an official channels. Through the advertisements of your products on social media websites, a number of people can attend to your product and recommend others in their community to visit your page or profile.

Social media marketing enables marketers to increase their sale and customer base by building social relationships and communications in a broader and informal manner. When consumers are satisfied by the information you share at your profile, they are likely to trust you through the direct communication at the social media platform. They might then refer your product to friends and others in the social circle that will surely give a boost to the social image of your brand. Give the audience something creative, beneficial and enjoyable. Social media lets you build a social and well recognized reputation at the web, the target audience will like your page or profile, will listen to the content that you share and will ultimately endorse you if you successfully satisfy their expectations.
