When searching for a mesothelioma attorney who can provide you the legal assistance you require, it is important to find a genuinely compassionate lawyer who cares not only for financial gain but for the well being of his client. But how do you “test” for compassion in a potential mesothelioma attorney?

Contingency Fee Payment Arrangement

If you have been diagnosed with mesothelioma, you are likely facing significant medical fees, and may also be losing wages if you’re unable to work during your treatment. Finding additional money to use to pay an attorney can be difficult, if not impossible. A compassionate attorney, like those at the law firm of Baron and Budd, P.C. will understand this and provide alternate payment plans for his or her clients.

The most common way to do this is to represent a mesothelioma case with a contingency fee. This means that the mesothelioma attorney or law firm agrees to take on the case, but will receive no payment from the client, until and unless the client is awarded compensation. This allows mesothelioma patients who wouldn’t otherwise be able to afford to hire an attorney the ability to pursue a legal claim against those responsible for their illness.

A Legacy of Giving Back

Baron and Budd, P.C. believes that, “Justice for all starts with justice for one.” At the same, the mesothelioma law firm actively supports projects and initiatives that benefit asbestos victims in general. Here’s a short list of their most recent charitable activities:

¢Primer for Patients. Medical terms can be confusing for the average patient. For this reason, Baron and Budd, P.C. underwrote the NCCN Patient Guidelines for Mesothelioma. The rationale behind the writing of the primer is this: If mesothelioma victims and their families understand the disease better, they will be better able to manage the disease and make more informed decisions towards treatment and other medical issues. The law firm also sponsored the distribution of Understanding Mesothelioma, a book that provides patients and caregivers accessible medical and legal information. Topics covered include treatment options, how to find a specialist, and more.

¢Research programs. Without proper funding, research into more effective treatments for mesothelioma cannot take place. The firm understands the importance of research programs in finding solutions for improving the lives of mesothelioma cancer patients. Hence, they have made generous donations to the International Mesothelioma Program at Brigham and Women’s Hospital and many other research groups.

Baron and Budd, P.C. has been helping mesothelioma victims for over 30 years, inside and outside of courtrooms. If you want to learn more about this precedent-setting law firm, visit www.baronandbudd.com.
