Since education is becoming too much expensive, most of the students opt for educational loans. There are different financial institutions or loan lenders who give out student loans. If the educational loans which you once took in college have started haunting you since you are a defaulter, don't worry. You are not the only one as defaulted student loan accounts for a large amount of personal debt and many people acquire a bad name and history for this. However, there are few options with which you can actually get out of repayment and there are many repayment facilities as well. Default of student loan leads to grave problems if not tackled properly.

Some warnings and tips when you become a defaulter of student loans

You should have proper documents of your student loans, and record each and every conversation with the collection agency regarding repayment. Seek help from the US Department of Education in case of any difficulty.

As soon as you become a defaulter, the collection agencies will start calling you or send you emails. You need to talk to them very nicely over the phone. The government has enough right to get back the money from you. To get a better assistance, a courteous and well mannered attitude is always desirable.

If the collection agency abuses you over phone or messages you or somehow threatens you, you have the right to report it to the US Department of Education. They will take the necessary measures thereafter.

Ways of repayment of Defaulted student loans

Following are some instructions available to you regarding repayment of defaulted student loans.

Think of a concrete financial plan before you start paying off your loan that is outstanding. If the defaulted student loans are in good position or if you have not yet come to a point where you need to repay the loan, you have ample time to decide upon the repayment options.

Look for the correct repayment option when you default of student loan. It depends on your financial condition.

If your earning is less or you have a low income and you possess a family of your own, then you should seek help of IBR or Income Based Repayment program. There are some situations when you can apply such a program to the defaulted loans.

It's important to find out the status of all loans that are accrued and the best way is to go to the NSLDS.
