The problem is known to all but the solution is not at sight. What to do with the unwanted garbage of the house, there are several of them. For instance, what about the used mobiles? The question has lead to the answer as most of the question will, but that never happens to be an acceptable one. Yes, we have to sell them; we do the same as we do not have any other option. In each and every time the paltry sum that involves with the deed is really surprising. You will keep on wandering, where on earth you may get the fair deal so far you are going to sell these old and obsolete pieces.

There are different answers again, apart from going to those resellers who offer you to sell used cell phones to them, the websites are there, and the auction pages are also available too. So you can be with these sites and put the article for the listing and wait for a good bargain price. These cell phones of yours, already in souring condition, will dip into the morasses and fervently you will search for the escape vent to settle for a respected deal.

Pace Butler, the company in the recycling and reselling business of the cell phone and is in operation since 25 years, a pretty good time span indeed in this area. The process that they are offering so that you may sell used cell phones of yours is painstakingly simple. Just arrange your old handsets in a good card board box, pack it neatly, put a FedEx prepaid label on it and dispatch the consignment to the Pace Butler HQ at Oklahoma.

You will get the fund, as high as $125 per phone. For your used cell phones, there cannot be a better deal and they are not cheating. There are several testimonials when these phones are being dispatched and are being paid within 4-5 days time span. It is as simple as that. Each and every time, the same thing is being repeated and the deal is settled with a win-win solution.

You will wonder how these can be possible. The reason is apparent. They deal with used phones only; it is the exclusive business of them unlike those supermarkets on line that are ready to serve you with every conceivable products inviting less order and more chaos in between. Pace Butler deals with only one product and so the problem is being marginalized.
