Austin Wedding Photographer: the Photojournalistic Wedding Photographer Style and Traveling Destination Wedding Photographer by Mike Tseng

Article published on March 10th 2012 | Photography

Wedding photographs are a cherished keepsake that commemorate one of the most important days of your life. If searching for an Austin wedding photographer, you should consider the photographer's style – are they a photojournalist wedding photographer or do they take a more traditional approach? If you plan to be married away from home, finding a destination wedding photographer will also be important.

Traditional wedding photographers typically shoot formal color photos where people are posed and looking toward the camera. Traditional photography requires direction, involvement, and control from the photographer. An Austin wedding photographer who shoots in a traditional style may also set up artificially romantic fantasy images which are also posed.

In contrast, a photojournalist wedding photographer takes a story telling approach. A photojournalist wedding photographer will capture wedding-day events as they unfold, without interference or orchestration. He or she will take candid shots in which the subject may not even know they are being photographed.

A photojournalist wedding photographer will typically offer to shoot in black and white as well as color for a journalistic feel. A photojournalist wedding photographer aspires to shoot photos that are more raw, realistic, and factual in a documentary fashion.

The advantages of using a photojournalist wedding photographer are a more natural look, lower stress of not having to pose for shots, and real memories and moments rather than contrived ones. They are more unpredictable as a result.

If your wedding will take place at a unique destination, you have the choice of using a local photographer or a destination wedding photographer. Choosing an Austin wedding photographer specialized in destinations has certain advantages.

A destination wedding photographer will be able to look at a new environment with fresh eyes, using the environment in unique ways a local may not see in the same light. A destination wedding photographer brings other benefits.

An Austin wedding photographer specializing in destination weddings gives you the chance to meet them prior to the wedding. Knowing your destination wedding photographer will relieve the stress of an unknown entity.

Naturally a destination wedding photographer comes with travel expenses, such as airfare, taxis, hotel stays, and so forth. Therefore, it is important you discuss terms and travel fees in detail with your Austin wedding photographer.

There are lots of considerations when planning your wedding photography in terms of style, budget, and destination. At the end of the day, the best decision is what fits your budget and personal preferences.
