Everybody works hard to earn money and build property. But a lot of effort needs to be put into maintaining the property as well. Property management is an important step to maintain the hard earned properties. It involves operation, oversight and control of all types of properties such as commercial, residential or industrial. Property management also includes the management of equipment, personal property, physical capital assets etc. that are gained and used in building, repairing and maintain the end item deliverables. Overall, property management includes all the processes, manpower and systems needed to maintain the complete life cycle of the gained property which are mentioned above.

Some owners prefer to rent the properties. Rental property management has an important role in connecting the owner of the record and the tenant. There are rental property management companies to help the owners with property management processes. The basic tasks of these companies are listed below:

- 1) Thorough investigation of the potential tenant for any criminal history, ability to pay, an applicant's credit and rental history.
- 2) Rent or lease contracting using officially permitted documents accepted in the area where the property is situated.
- 3) Remediation and Mitigation for any issues concerning maintenance.

Other tasks involved in property management task are managing the finances and accounts of the real estate properties. Also involving or initiating any proceedings with contractors, insurance agencies and tenants. An attorney working under the Rental property management company will take up the responsibility. The common issues that require legal attention would be non-paying, evictions, harassment, public nuisance and reduction of pre arranged services. So it is very important that the project managers are up to date with the current laws.

The property management process is made a lot easier with the help of softwares. The decrease in the price of the software is helping small and amateur companies use best practices and work efficiently.
