Article published on December 19th 2011 | Real Estate

The recent exuberant boom in the real estate market has made property in Dubai more desirable than ever for the investors. If you are looking to live or just to keep your investment safe, property in Dubai maybe the solution to your problems. The recent changes in the land acquisition laws have enabled the foreign direct investment into the real estate market; be it to sell villa Dubai or apartments, this may be the best time to invest in the property. Dubai has grown from being a sandy village into a big size metropolis and a true cosmopolitan city. Set in the Middle East, the emirate boasts a diverse ethnic population along with its nationals living in the utmost of the harmony amidst peace of mind and security.

The city offers economic stability in the direst of economic situation being faced by man. The real estate sector has been controlled by the government under the supervision of the prime minister. The city intends to expand and utilize its boundaries and allow effective and efficient economic growth to take place. The living standard being maintained by the emirate is one to be applauded and many initiatives have been started on the directives of the Dubai government.

A lot of specialist real estate companies have sprung up that offer to sell villa Dubai for a percent of the value of the property as commission. Flats rent Dubai has significantly decreased with the onset of the recession. Rents have dropped up to a whopping 35 to 30% making it a huge drop for the investors looking to use their investments as a buy-to-let option. Certain posh locales have yet to face the brunt of recession. Flats rent Dubai Marina has for some reason or the other stayed pretty much the same while some others have taken a nose dive in the rent department. The specialist real estate companies are available to help the investors make an informed and effective decision. Many offer advice so as to aid the new buyers whilst others cater for the more seasoned investors.

The recent recovery of the job market has also added to the increased demand of rented accommodation such as flats rent Dubai. Along with its excellent infrastructure, Dubai offers a host of other quality lifestyle enhancing features making it the place to live. The lovely weather with plenty of sun all year round makes it perfect environment for everyone. With all the mega malls located in the emirate, it seems to be a shopper's paradise. Without any taxes, those purchases ought to be more value for money and will entice the shoppers to come over and over again. The creation of new legislation has made it tougher for the contractors to dishonor their ongoing commitments and leave current contracts due to financial difficulties. Investments in the real estate sector have been deemed very safe, especially in a city like Dubai which boasts security, investment protection and other important factors that make investment lucrative and to sell villa Dubai seems easy to do job.
