

Article published on March 22nd 2012 | Shopping

It can be surprising how much children are actually learning whilst they are playing. This is why it is important to provide educational toys to help them make the most of their playtime. There are many great children's wooden toys that offer learning experiences and are also a lot of fun.

Childrens Wooden Toys

The great thing about children's wooden toys is that as well as offering great opportunities for learning and play they are also aesthetically appealing. These toys usually look so much nicer than the garish plastic toys commonly available. The natural look and feel of the wood has a calmer effect on the environment and also children. Brightly coloured noisy plastic toys can often over-stimulate children create a boisterous mood that can quickly turn to tears. The calm, natural feel of high quality children's wooden toys can help you to create fun play spaces where children can play safely without disturbing the whole household.

Types of Wooden Toys

There are so many children's wooden toys available to buy it's hard to know where to start. One of the best ways to begin is to think about why you are buying the toys. Are they for home or for taking on trips? If you need to pack them up and take them with you then it can be a good idea to look for toys that come with their own carry box or bag.

There are some great children's wooden toys out there that can help young children to develop spatial awareness and hand-eye coordination. This is one of the main benefits of building style toys and you can choose from some fantastic wooden building toys such as:

1. BristleBlocks – these fun toys are ideal for educational and fun play. BristleBlocks fix together easily and are great for young children developing their manual dexterity skills. The BristleBlocks can also be easily pulled apart again and this makes it easy for children to build structures and also take them down again. BristleBlocks offer the soft, chunky –Stackadoos– for lots of safe creative fun which are available in a range of colours. BristleBlocks also offer –Spinaroos– which have twisty bases to add more movement and innovation to building play.
2. Rainbow Cubes – help your children learn to recognise colours and also develop manual dexterity with these wonderful Rainbow Cubes. The cubes feature all kinds of educational and fun panel designs to assist with learning numbers letters and also the names of animals. The cubes can be stacked easily and will also slot inside each other for fast and easy storage.
3. Building Blocks – you can't go wrong with traditional building blocks. Look out for larger building block sets that offer different shapes and sizes. This will provide children with the opportunity to build more complex wooden structures as they play. Young children will enjoy knocking down the block towers as much as they enjoy building them!

Article Source:

<http://www.articleside.com/shopping-articles/childrens-wooden-toys-healthy-learning-through-play.htm> - Article Side

John Ashleigh - About Author:

You will be spoilt with choice when it comes to a children's wooden toys. There are so many different wooden toys available from traditional favourites to modern classics with a twist to help learning through play.

Article Keywords:

Traditional Wooden Toys, Wooden Baby Toys, Childrens Wooden Toys, Wooden Toys UK

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!