

Article published on July 27th 2012 | Software

Developers have exploited Android software development as a major platform for meeting customer's requirements and as a major source of income. The increase in demand is fuelled by the relentless growth in the mobile applications development and the uniformity in enhancing the quality of wireless networks. Android software development is a great platform for developers to come up with some innovative and unique applications which makes the mobile experience much more enhanced and empowering. Developers are liberated to exploit device, access location information, hardware, run background services, set alarms add notifications on the status bar and much more. Developers can even have the access to frameworks consumed by core applications.

Here is the list of features that can be availed out of the Android Software Development platform:

EDGE, EV-DO, UMTS, Bluetooth, CDMA, GSM, and Wi-Fi technologies to send/receive data from mobile networks.

-P2P with Google Talk.

- Data storage with SQLite.

Various libraries enabled for videos, images, and audio files

Distinguishing features like GPS, Video camera, Touchscreen, accelerometer and magnetometer

Wide ranging libraries for 2D and 3D graphics.

Message passing and inter process communication

Export and signing by publishing an app

Android software developer has gained a lot of admiration in India and has been playing a crucial role in android software development. Android developers have been coming up with great software for android by working with a great spectrum of clients. Android software development includes entertainment, weather, multimedia, maintenance, business, games etc. for reaching out to all the sectors the developer must possess vast knowledge, proficiency and skills and above all technical knowledge. Each complex advancement is to be handled by a team of expert professionals.

Android operating system has an added benefit to integrate itself with most of the Google's services like mails, maps, navigation, shopping, search, and all this can be availed easily with this OS.

With the rapid growth in android software development, business has been hiring these services provider instantly. These services are even flexible to get, one can hire it on part time basis whereas businesses with huge projects can get it for full time too. It is all according to the business requirements.

These days the demand for android applications are growing immensely. Android being the most admired and used platform amongst the users, have been trying its best to keep up with the demands by undertaking android software development which empowers the experience. Android software development has been giving all the liberties to android developers to meet all the challenges and go meet the client's expectations. Another attribute of android software development is that no matter how complex it gets in the development stage, the final result is always user friendly and convenient to use.

Before opting for an outsourcing company for android software development, make sure you interact with them much so that you clearly mention all your requirements and needs, and they understand it in the ,exact manner. Donâ€™t forget that communication is a major necessity for good software development. So avail the benefits of android software development and make the most out of it.

Article Source:

<http://www.articleside.com/software-articles/android-software-development-stimulates-your-mobile-phones.htm> - Article Side

Abhinav Verma - About Author:

DevelopMobileApp is one of the front runner for the quality a android software development across the world. a Android Software Developer from DMA are highly expertise in android application development software. Develop Mobile App comprises wide ranging collection of unique Android app software.

Article Keywords:

android software development, android software developer, android software, android app development software, android developer software, android software developers, android development software, software for android, android software applications, andro

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!