The v5.0 and the Express: is the Better Thing in Life Free or Paid? by Samantha Cole

Article published on April 20th 2012 | Software

Free and paid are the two software versions usually offered in the market. Free software is a godsend for individuals who need the software in a whim even if it is restricted to a couple of features. To step up to advanced tasks, you have to purchase the update.

The Blackberry Enterprise Server is no different; it has the Express as its free version and the v5.0 as the paid one. The comparison of the Express and the v5.0 has indeed been the topic of discussion in online forums and other sites. Should you go for the money saver or the full-course plate? Some specialists have offered their own thoughts on which one to select.

Both the v5.0 and the Express need a client license or CAL to get activated and uncover its terrific features. CALs also exist in other software, often named license keys, to make certain that the copy of the software is authentic. For the BlackBerry Enterprise Server, one CAL is good for several units- though the v5.0's CAL can provide for more.

The Express contains five or ten CALs, with each CAL good for 75 units if they are all connected to the same server. Differently, the v5.0 contains 20 CALs, with each CAL good for a marvelous 2,000 units. To get more CALs for more units, you can get Express CALs for free, while a single v5.0 CAL can amount to about 90 dollars.

As mentioned before, if you wish to get more out of your software, it will definitely cost you several bucks. For less than $3,000, you can get the BlackBerry Enterprise Server v5.0 with additional functions and complete technical support. The price may seem too expensive to pay for, but if you operate a big venture, you need a complete arsenal of features to manage it. On the other hand, the Express can be a better choice for small- and medium-sized companies.

You can command the BlackBerry Enterprise Server 5 to behave in a method appropriate for your business. This can be done by setting up the right IT policies, which are applicable for the v5.0 and the Express. The Express has 35 IT policies available, while the v5.0 provides 450 IT policies.

For more information on the BlackBerry Enterprise Server Express 5.0 and its paid version, you can read the write-up at CrackBerry.com. The BlackBerry website also has a list of the IT policies you can set up for your unit.
