

Article published on December 21st 2011 | Software

Software geeks are always on a spree to find latest softwares to boost their quality and performance of work. However, few geeks do hold a bitter opinion towards use of freeware and shareware. They refute from buying pirated wares that carry striking similarity to original counterparts. When asked why they do so, their answer roots to ethics and their reasons may not convince any free software downloads fanatic. However, there exists one big misconception with them, which needs to be clarified. Not all freewares are necessarily pirate wares. There exist plenty of open source wares, which perform almost similar to that of expensive softwares. However, one can download them for free without paying any price.

Free software downloads are simply freeware. Their developers do not charge any extra dime from their users. One might wonder why do they come for free at all. There may be several reasons why softwares are available for free. Right from marketing to earning traffic through advertisements, there could be different reason why they are available for free. However, the point is, why should one choose them. Apart from being free, they perform exactly in similar way to their expensive counterparts. If one goes to find, then he/she may end up with scores of softwares, which perform same tasks. The only difference that one may find is the difference in the UI or User Interface and the algorithm written in it.

Indeed, free software downloads saves money. However, in addition to money, they save time too. Good software eases one's workload and thus, saves time. Updates or new versions come with advance features and better user-friendliness to make work easier and faster. Moreover, updated versions of free download cost no extra money such as those that come against a price. Hence, in a way, free softwares are much faster and efficient than older original wares. Moreover, being a dynamic industry, softwares constantly undergo upgradations, making it difficult for customers to stay in race of buying latest version. It is one of the chief reasons why people choose free downloads than spending exorbitant prices upgrading their older paid versions.

Article Source:

<http://www.articleside.com/software-articles/why-to-choose-free-software-downloads.htm> - Article Side

Saima Triphor - About Author:

The Author is a professional writer, presently writing for a free software downloads and a Play online games.

Article Keywords:

free software downloads, Play online games