

Article Side

Find out What Kalashnikov Knives are and What They are Used For by DJ Willis

Article published on January 8th 2012 | Sports

Automatic knives are those where the blade glides parallel to the handle to release. There are two kinds of OTF knives. The first is the single action OTF knife which quickly extends the blade, typically using a push button, but has to be manually retracted. The next type of OTF knife is the double action knife that immediately extends the blade and retracts it using a sliding button or release. Microtech knives are great tactical knives as they are fully automatic.

OTF knives are the ones which, when triggered, thrust the blade out of the front of the handle. They are often divided into subgroups such as manual slides knives, automatic OTF switchblade knives along with gravity knives that are restricted as they possibly can be considered and used as offensive weapons.

However, because they are fully automatic, they make exceptional tools for law enforcement and military. Especially in scenarios where they cannot safely advance forward without their firearm in one hand, the automatic OTF knife provides them the versatility and ease of use while providing protection.

Because these automatic OTF knives may be used as an offensive weapon, several countries around the world have forbidden the possession or use of automatic knives or OTF knives. Additionally, a lot of schools and colleges have also prohibited the possession or holding of such a knife.

There are a few exclusions to this. For example, a hunter or an individual whose job requires the use of such a knife would be allowed to possess a Microtech OTF knife - like a chef. The use or possession of knives such as these by ordinary people has been banned in the most part because of their offensive nature and even certain OTF knives being connected with possible gang affiliation.

Austria is among the few exceptions to the prohibiting of OTF knives by civilian use or possession. In Austria, civilians are allowed to possess automatic knives like Kalashnikov knives or Smith and Wesson knives. This is quite different than attitudes of the majority of other Western European nations where knives are regarded with suspicion because of their weaponry ability.

Historically, the first known example of a spring loaded blade dates back to the 18th century. The majority of those from that time period seen in museums and galleries today are from the British and French origins. Today there are a great number of companies and even custom makers of automatic OTF knives. High quality built automatic knives are made right here in the USA with American materials and labor. Government departments, armed forces units, emergency personnel and even enthusiasts of knives can find numerous OTF knives to suit their needs and interests.

Hence, if you're searching for Microtech OTF knives or automatic knives of any size, make or model, be sure to research before you buy and review all of the available options. You will see a number of prices to fit every financial situation in addition to a myriad of models and makes to suit your selected purpose.

Article Source:

<http://www.articleside.com/sports-articles/find-out-what-kalashnikov-knives-are-and-what-they-are-used-for.htm> - Article Side

DJ Willis - About Author:

BladeOps.com offers a Kalashnikov knives and a Smith and Wesson knives, along with many other brands. Visit today.

Article Keywords:

Kalashnikov knives, Smith and Wesson knives

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!