This guide explains what sorts of accommodation you can book when staying in London, regardless of whether on business or for leisure. It includes information on hotels near to Paddington and Hyde Park, both popular areas within the city, making them perfect for getting around.

London is a very popular city amongst all sorts of people. Brits from all over the country often visit there on business and leisure, plus it is one of the top tourist destinations with holidaymakers around the world. Because of its shopping, multicultural vibe, outstanding landmarks and being home to The Queen, it has many pulling factors, as well as being a hub for business, home to many of the world's most famous and most successful brands.

If you are looking to find a hotel near Paddington, it is a good idea to search online for a variety of options. There are different budgets to choose from. Being close to Paddington is ideal as the train station connects to a number of cities and towns around the UK, making it easy to get to and from the area. If you like to stick to chain hotels that are familiar then there is a Hilton Hotel in Paddington. It offers luxury and comfort and being a well-known brand, you should know what sort of service and features to expect. EasyHotel is a cheaper brand, but still a chain, so an ideal place to stay.

There are various other hotels in the area with all sorts of prices and features included. If you are looking for something more unusual, you could try one of the independent four or five star hotels or even a boutique. It completely depends upon your preferences, but there is a wide variety to choose from.

Staying in the Paddington area means you are close to many of the tube stations, which are all within walking distance, making it easy and cheap to travel around the city. It is also close to the Heathrow Express terminal, so you can get back to the airport quickly if you have to catch a flight back home.

If you prefer to opt for accommodation near Hyde Park, there are various types to choose from. It depends on how much you are willing to spend. Hostels are suitable for those who are on a very tight budget and need to save as much money as possible.

There are various star rated hotels to choose from as well. The area is situated in a central location of the city, close to some of the best markets, shopping places, tourist attractions and landmarks. There are lots of things to see and do, making it an ideal place to stay. It is also not too far from Waterloo station, making it easy to get to and from various places. Hyde Park is a lovely outdoor area to walk around, especially in the summer, where there are also many music festivals and other events to enjoy.
