Orient Express Tours -The Eastern and Oriental Express by Markweledson

Article published on August 22nd 2012 | Travel

The Orient Express is one of the most popular railroads in Europe and its traditional route is from London, England to Istanbul and Turkey. The momentous charm of this traditional railroad and the excellence of service can offer the travelers a feel of getting back to a time when train travel was only meant for elite class people in the continent of Europe. The best thing about this rail route is that the travelers need not essentially have to take the tour from London to Istanbul for enjoying a luxurious orient express tour. Rather, there are a number of day trips available and travel enthusiasts can take advantage from these sorts of trips as well.

One of the best day trips would be the train moving from London to Manchester and this trip would be ideal for people, who wish to tour Southern England. The day trips in this route are affordable and the travelers can enjoy a traditional English tea when riding on the rails and they can visit wonderful excursion places on the way.

When it comes to orient express tours in Europe there is a train called as Danube Express, which acts as hotel on wheels since they offer a relaxing and sophisticated way of traveling to some of the most enticing destinations in the continent of Europe. The allure of this train lies with the kind of service offered to travelers on board and the type of comfort and style offered.

Orient express would offer something more than a mere rail journey to the tourists and right from its introduction in the year 1883, when it first ran from Paris to Istanbul, it has been capturing the world's imagination.

Another popular train running in Europe under this category is Venice Simplon Orient Express. For people, who wish to get journey experience in these trains, there are firms specialized in offering luxury train travel to the people and they can book their travel with the help of the reservation form available in the website of these service providers. Through their websites, people can get detailed timetable for these trains and they can also enjoy video clippings of these trains from the website of these service providers.

So, if you are planning your trip to Europe in the forthcoming vacation do not miss a chance of traveling in these trains, which will sure be a memorable experience for your lifetime.
