The establishment and management of a business require great organizational abilities and advanced tools to assist in the attempts to do it. This becomes the matter of great significance if yours is an ever-expanding business. However, the advancements in technology have made the task fast and effective, thanks to the abundance of web based project management software.

If you wish to get the maximum out of these right-hand assistants of business owners, you just have to have an idea of what you require and the number of users who would have to take advantage of the tools. The following is an overview of some of the online project management solutions for your consideration. However, to have unlimited user-access and storage facilities, you may be required to spend a few bucks. The standard limitations and features which are general to most of the online project management solutions are:

1. Restrictions on client-access
2. Facilities to send notifications to users in the form of emails with regard to deadlines and other related rules and regulations in accordance with the project
3. Facilities to edit the documents of reference simultaneously by different users at different locations
4. Notice boards and platforms for mutual communication among the management, among the employees and exchange of information between staff and the management team
5. Facilities to prepare task lists and calendar in an organized manner

One among the first results if you do a search for online project management solution is sure to be Basecamp. With a great reputation in the market for simple user-interface and affordability, this web based project management software is ideal if you are on the lookout of an affordable tool to have an edge above your competitors.

The features vary based on how much you are able to pay for the tool on a monthly basis. This tool is ideal for you if yours is a small team working from different locations. Acquiring this project management solution entitles you to an easy-to-understand book on building great websites, "Getting Real: The smarter, faster, easier way to build web applications".

Another of the kind, Teamwork Project Manager claims to be cheaper than basecamp. Ideal for small businesses working for other companies, this too offers varying features on the basis of monthly payment.

A third one among these exquisite quality online project management solutions is Zoho Projects offered by the Zoho solutions which offers a variety of Office applications. This claims to offer its services at a lower cost compared to most of its online competitors. All the plans including the free one allows unlimited number of users. And the other features vary based on payment.

Another of the kind, a web based project management software is Wrike is best known for an innovative and flexible design. Here, the relatively complex structure of projects and task lists pave way to something easy-to-manage, files and folders. This tool requires that you pay in accordance with the number of users.

Do your homework well and take an informed decision. One thing is sure, good web based project management software holds the power to determine your existence in this tough competition.
