Getting married is one of the most important decisions a person can make in his life. Not only does a couple need to plan a wedding ceremony, they also need to plan the arrangements after the wedding. They have to think about living arrangements, whether they want children and / or pets and even if one is to give up a job among others.

When you and your partner finally decide to get married, planning your wedding is probably the first challenge you will encounter as an engaged couple. A lot of people plan to get married only once in their lifetime, so they make sure that the ceremony is unforgettable. A wedding will be the first day of a shared life together, so you should plan it well.

Choosing a venue for your special celebration is just one of the things you need to do. You need to pick a venue that fits your budget and can accommodate all your guests. The venue will also set the mood of your special day; you can choose among different types of venues that will suit your wedding theme.

For example, a beach wedding would have a less formal, more laid-back atmosphere. Outdoor gardens weddings are perfect for afternoon tea or nature themes. A hotel ballroom will give you the most flexible venue as you can have the space designed to suit your theme, for instance a 70â€™s theme or winter themed wedding.

You can also first choose a specific location for your wedding, and then scout for possible venues in the area. You can go out of your town or city, or even out of the country, or you can just choose to get married in a place closer to home. If you live in California, then you and your spouse-to-be can choose to get married in any of the other beautiful cities in the state. You can find a lot wedding venues in Santa Cruz CA, in Santa Monica and in San Luis Obispo.

Always keep your guests in mind. If you are thinking of booking one of the wedding venues in Santa Monica CA, think if it will be convenient for your guests; think of where they will come from. Will your guests need overnight accommodations?

When looking for wedding venues San Luis Obispo offers, keep in mind the technical aspects such as music and sound systems, catering, decorations and many more. Know the house rules of the venues and relay them to your guests to help avoid possible problems.
