Precision Dynamic's Superband® wristbands, Vinyl Wristbands, and SureImage®, Full-Color Wristbands are non-transferable, durable, and waterproof to withstand multiple days of wear and tear. Guests can play as hard (or as little) as they want enjoying outdoor activities from swimming to hiking to playing in the sand—or even just lying in the sun. PDC's multi-day can take whatever beatings water, sand or sun offer. There are several types of events, activities and venues that can benefit from using multi-day wristbands as multi-day passes. Following are just a handful of application possibilities.

Multi-day are highly effective at sporting events that span over a few days—races and playoffs are good examples. Spectators do not need to worry about losing a ticket from day to day. Instead, they just wear a multi-day wristband securely around their wrist. Multi-day wristbands are highly visible because they come in bright colors—and, lots of them, at that. Each color can designate a different group of people. General admission spectators can wear blue bands, while VIP's wear red bands. By using wristbands for multi-day events, staff can easily identify whether patrons are where they should be. Different colored multi-day wristbands can also be used to identify different categories of athletes. If there will be contests or raffles during the multi-day sporting event, serial numbered multi-day wristbands are a perfect choice. Spectators who enter just tear off their entry tab for the drawing, and the same serial number is also imprinted on their wristband. No losing entry tickets!

There are a lot of fun music festivals that last multiple days, such as Coachella, SXSW, Stagecoach, and more. These events require multi-day passes to get in and enjoy the music. Multi-day wristbands are just the ticket—and a great convenience for guests. If they have to leave the venue for some reason, there are no worries about getting back in. There isn't a ticket stub to lose or a stamp to get washed away.

Multi-day wristbands can also be worn by staff working at multi-day music festivals. That includes everyone from waiters to sound and equipment engineers, and also performers and their staff. Wearing multi-day wristbands helps security staff identify who has access to restricted areas and who is authorized to be backstage.

Camps for kids can find a large number of uses for multi-day wristbands. Since multi-day wristbands come in a wide variety of colors, they are helpful for group designation. Each group of kids can be assigned to wear a matching colored multi-day wristband. Kids can be grouped by age or lodging unit—everyone in the same group wears the same color multi-day wristbands. Or, maybe multi-day wristbands are disbursed to kids with special dietary restrictions, allergies or medication requirements. Any which way, colored, multi-day wristbands can assist with children's safety. They can provide a camp counselor, leader or staffer with enough information to make a big difference.

Multi-day wristbands are perfect for identifying guests at all-inclusive resorts or hotels because the wristbands can be worn for several days or even a couple weeks. These wristbands are made of plastic and vinyl, making them waterproof and extremely durable. They're perfect for identifying all-inclusive guests. Superband plastic wristbands are so strong; they have to be removed with scissors. This prevents hotel guests from removing them and transferring them to another person.

From time to time, non-guests might try to sneak into hotels or resorts to access the pool, fitness center, private party, convention or private banquet. Multi-day wristbands make it easy for staff to identify guests so only those who are authorized may enter. “Crashers” are easy to spot.

Another way to put multi-day wristbands to use at hotels and resorts is to use serial numbered multi-day wristbands for baggage claim. Attach the numbered tab to the baggage and the matching number is worn around the owner's wrist. There's no way to misplace a ticket and question whether an item belongs to the person claiming it.

Multi-day wristbands offer many benefits to multi-day events. Mainly, multi-day wristbands increase efficiency and security, which, in turn increases profits and customer satisfaction.
