Academic essay is written in response to a question asked. In the academic essay, it is expected to present a point of view, which is present in a thesis statement and is informed by research. The aim of the academic essay is development of a support argument for the thesis, which is proposed. An academic essay must have a purpose or motive. Just the existence of the assignment or the deadline is not sufficient.

There are few steps in preparation of an academic essay. First is choosing the topic. Second step is analysis of the question. Third step is construction of an initial outline plan. Fourth step is location and evaluation of resources. Fifth step is researching and organization of notes, construction of a final essay plan. Last and final steps are preparation of rough draft and final draft. Most of the academic essays require presenting an argument with the help of reasoning and the use of evidence. The typical structure of an academic essay is introduction, body and conclusion. The introduction includes background of topic and introduction of content of the essay. Body includes presentation of central idea that supports thesis statement. Conclusion includes restating of the thesis statement and summarizing of the arguments.
