Hackney is the best borough by Allasterdarryl

Article published on May 22nd 2012 | Business

The borough of Hackney, East London comprises of a number of areas within its region. These include the en vogue areas of Shoreditch, Hackney Central, Dalston and Hoxton. In more recent times, the borough has becomes ever so popular with scenesters and hipsters. This is because of the diverse art, lifestyle and nightlife culture that has become well known here. Itâ€™s not only become a desirable place to visit, during the day and at night but an increasingly sought-after location to live. This has brought a wealth of tourism to the area, something that the Hackney Taxi companies are positive about, as well as many other businesses.

The most significant attraction that brings in the masses is The White Cube gallery in Hoxton Square. As previously mentioned, the art-lovers and avant-garde types of the city have found this place to be a significant hit. These types of commercially cultural spots are what make these parts of the city what they are today. However, there are some hidden gems that are worth a visit too. After all, these are what make the area all the more exciting. Club nights, eateries, cafe-cum-bars plus many alternative thrift clothes stores all amalgamate to make this place what it is today, very different from its past.

Hail a Hackney cab to the area, then take it on foot. Taxis and public transport are all good to get you to the area, but then it is necessary to use your feet to take you to the smaller, undisclosed parts of the district. Sniff out a good spot and find the unknown, just waiting to be discovered.

For a night out like no other, Hackney is the best borough. Here you can visit some quirky eateries and bars such as Zigfrid von Underbelly. Eclectic furnishings and extraordinary in background information, this is place that you can get lost in. Playing electronik, Indie, NuDisco, Dance and House music aplenty, plus there is usually free entry. Take a trip there in a Hackney taxi to find out yourself.

Whatâ€™s even more interesting to take note of is that Hackney is one of the boroughs that will be host to this year's Olympic Games in London 2012. If Hackney wasnâ€™t already on the map for a number of things, it certainly will be this summer. Accommodating the Olympics has been no mean feat; why not go and explore the area now, before the masses influx.
