Article published on July 26th 2012 | Business

Technology is ever changing; today it does not actually take much time for a new product to become outdated and out of use and this is especially true in the field of electronics. That is why one should be a little choosy while buying any such product; otherwise one may have to replace it soon enough. Another reason why one should be selective in his/her choice is that not every company that markets these products is equally adept in their job. For example, you may find many small and big companies taking out set top boxes; but are they all equally good? Technomate is definitely a reliable name in this sector; but how many others can actually compete with it.

A set top box or a STB as it is referred to as is a must, if one is keen to watch satellite television. It is an information appliance device, which boasts of a tuner that is connected to that of a television set. It catches an external source of signal from cable or satellite. The main function is too turn the signal into content, which is then displayed on the television screen or on the display device.

Some of the features of the STB are the electronic programming guide, which allows the user to have access to updated menus or broadcasting programs. The favorite feature allows one to choose the favorite channel one would like to view. The timer is a feature that allows the user of the program to enable the box to switch between channels at times. If there is a need to record more than one channel in absence of the user this is a feature that can always come handy. A Blade media is a must if one is indeed planning to view satellite television..
