What Makes a Good Website?

A good website stands out from the crowd so to speak. It integrates good copywriting, design and search engine optimisation, which in turn allows potential customers or people interested in your area of expertise find you.

As a website owner you want:

Ã± A website that sets itself apart

Ã± One that reflects your business image

Ã± A website that is easy to find

Ã± One that is easy to navigate

Websites designed by Team Website Design Perth offer all this and more. Because website design is now an ongoing process, unless you find a design company that can handle all aspects of the design process, including content, newsletters, social networking and more, you will have to hire different service providers to make your website productive and effective. This is where Team Website Design Perth can fit into your design development process as we do it all for you and eliminate all of the frustrations.

Whether you are looking for a more traditional image or one that is cutting edge-the Perth website designers at Team Website Design Perth are fully prepared to meet all of your needs. We can give you the home -that everyone can find- out in cyberspace.

When it comes to the Internet, your website is your professional image. It is your calling card to the world, but simply making a beautiful calling card or website is no longer the solution. Those businesses that choose design over content, often end up with a beautiful website that no one sees. The solution then is to integrate and make content, design and Search Engine Optimisation just as important as the design. Effective websites are as much about content as they are about design.

This is why we take the time to understand each client's objectives, strategies and needs. We find out what the projected image, market and customers should be and what they currently are. We ask you the questions -and listen carefully to your needs. This way you will get what you want at the price you want and need.

What about Content?

If you think content is content and anyone can write it-think again. Read an online news story. Print it out and compare it against a print or newspaper story. You may think that the printed web version seems overly simplistic compared to the more complex newspaper story-something you did not notice when reading online. This is because reading online is more difficult, so web content specialists need to reformulate information to get it across to readers in a faster, easier way.

Web copy editors at Team Website Design Perth understand this difference and know of the importance of content in search engine ranking.

That is why we focus just as much attention to the way web content is written and what it says as we do to the design process. Unless we can offer a good impression to web visitors, those visitors certainly won't stick around and see what you have to offer.

To make sure you get the best design with the most effective content, we place each of our clients with an experienced web copywriter who will help develop the content for their website.
