An ink cartridge is a throw away component of an inkjet printer which possesses the ink that is released onto paper during the printing process. You have many options to find a cartridge that fits your personal or business needs.

Toner is used in laser printers and photocopiers to create multiple types of work onto paper. Toner cartridge produces pictures, text papers, and spreadsheets for anything to light home use to heavy office demand where printing large quantities is in necessity. Toner is available in black, and the colours yellow, cyan, and magenta. Depending on the type and brand, cartridges such as Brother Toner Cartridges and other manufacturer cartridges can make copies in range of 100 pages and up to 3000 copy pages before needing a refill.

Original Equipment Manufacturer or OEM toners are the same cartridges that originally come with your printer at the time of purchase. The business corporation that made the printer normally manufactures OEM cartridges.

Companies such as Brother, HP, and Compaq offer a supply of compatible laser printer toner for home and office needs. The toner produced by these companies has easy refill steps, for example, Brother Toner Cartridges are easily replaceable with simple user-friendly instructions to follow.

Buying ink toner can be done either at your local store or through online purchases. When shopping for ink toner online, make sure your printer is compatible with the brand and cartridge. Having material information such as the brand, serial number, and type of printer unit will reduce any chance of error while ordering additional toner online. If you decide to visit your local computer and electronics store to purchase toner, a store associate can help provide information on the toner you need if you are unsure of the type that matches your printer brand.

Taking time to research, a few details about online market sales for toner can save time and money when purchasing replacement toner. Strong online competition to sell toner pushes prices down to offer a more competitive rate for home or business needs. If you are looking to replace large amounts of business toner online, some other factors to consider for saving money on printer toner is during parts of the year with slow business, vendors are willing to sell at a lower cost.

Safely storing an ink toner that you plan to use in the future saves time when your printer runs out of ink. Keeping the Brother toner cartridge you do not plan to use in the near future in the original packaging, in a sealed plastic bag to keep air from leaking into the cartridge, maintains the life of the toner. The reason to store it this way is that it will save the ink from prematurely drying out and clogging printer equipment when you are ready to use the toner.

Once you have decided on the option that best fits your home or business needs for toner cartridge, you can avoid any future hurdles and time-consuming trips to replace toner on a frequent basis. This will save you time, money, and sustains a steady balance of productivity from your equipment for the future.
