Despite the excitement and thrill it offers, interracial dating has its own hazards. Unless you have some basic knowledge and understanding of the culture your date belongs to, you can easily fall victims of scammers or end up with girls who are genuinely bad eggs. When you chat and date Chinese girls online, knowing the following things can help you in differentiating the girls with good intent from the ones with bad intent.

1. It is very likely that during your quest of Chinese brides, you may come across a girl who suggests that you will have to pay dowry to her parents at the time of wedding. Now, this is completely untrue as no respectable Chinese family can dream of taking anything from the prospective groom of their daughter. On the contrary, parents often send gifts for the groom at the time of wedding. This only means that the girl is looking to make some money out of you and you need to be wary of such females. Its best to move on and find someone genuine.

2. Today's Chinese brides are well educated and usually have careers which help them earn handsome salary and give them financial independence. Some Chinese girls take the advantage of the ignorance of western suitors and suggest that they would stay as housewives after marriage as it is the custom in China. There is no harm if you also want this however, taking advantage of cultural differences and misinforming the unsuspecting man is not something a genuine and good woman would do. Chinese women of today are known take care of their homes along with having successful careers.

3. Most Chinese women like to stay near their parents and families. If your online Chinese girlfriend is overenthusiastic about moving to America or Europe or wherever you live, she could actually be more interested in your passport than you.
