Crazy Scholarships for Photographers by Aida Mason

Article published on January 8th 2012 | Finance

Hard work, dedication, and a knack for taking photographs can get you thousands of dollars in money for college. Check out these crazy photography scholarships that can help you turn your talents into a thriving career or business.

No matter where your talent lies, you will learn it all in photography programs. You will photograph inanimate and animate objects. You will try your hand at photojournalism and photograph people in their everyday lives. With a degree in photography, you can work for a newspaper, take wedding photos for a living, run your own business, and work in fashion or overseas. Apply for crazy photography scholarships so you can start your career with a minimal amount of debt from college.

The Photoshop World Scholarship

You never know if the photos you see on the Internet are legitimate these days, and we have Adobe Photoshop to thank for that. Not only can you alter photos to add in that missing family member to the group shot, you can do amazing things with light and editing. If you are obsessed with Photoshop and you want to take advantage of learning the best techniques there are, then you should apply for this crazy photography scholarship, which is a $699 scholarship to attend the Graphic Design and Photography Scholarship. Twenty-five winners will receive this scholarship, and one lucky winner will get entrance to the convention, plus a year's membership to the organization. Stay ahead of your peers by building up your networking and skills while you are still in school.

The National Press Photographers Foundation Photography Scholarship

The NPPF offers more crazy photography scholarships than any other organization. Most of their scholarships are dedicated to photographers who have passed away either in the field or out. These awards range in monetary amount from $1000 to $4000. If you are interested in taking the type of photos that grace the covers of magazines like TIME and Newsweek, then you should look into these crazy photography scholarships. If you are already a press journalist who is going back to school, then you are eligible for one of six $4000 scholarships to supplement your education. You must be a published photographer with at least three years' experience.

The Sigma Scholarship Contest

No purchase necessary for this weird photography scholarship. Just write a 300-800 word essay and submit a photo essay of five photographs with the same theme, and you are eligible for a $5000 prize and $1000 gift card toward Sigma products. Weird photography scholarships from this organization have helped future photographers go on to become fashion photographers and photojournalists. Send in your application today.

Crazy photography scholarships will give you thousands of dollars in scholarship money. This will help you get started in your chosen career without all the debt of student loans.
